1.Applicant's election without traverse of Group I, claims 1-6 in the reply filed on February 13, 2008 is acknowledged.

2.The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Fisher-Fruhholz et al (see paragraphs 0003, 0004, 0011-0013, 0023, 0032 and 0035).

The applied reference discloses the instant process for preparing a substrate for use with a hybridization array including the instant steps of placing a nylon porous layer on a substrate, collapsing or melting a grid onto the porous layer using a controlled laser or a mask—ie, one-step and hence no contact—see paragraph 0032) such that a moat is formed around the individual areas where the array will be positioned.

3.The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fisher-Fruhholz et al in view of Dickerson (see col. 27, lines 37-50).

The primary reference discloses the basic claimed process as set forth in paragraph 2, supra, the reference teaching the basic claimed invention lacking essentially the aspect of positioning a gasket in the formed moat. Dickerson discloses reducing solution cross-contamination in an array plate by providing a rubber seal—gasket or O-ring—in a groove between a lid and a baseplate. Since the aim of the primary reference is to isolate the various porous areas on which the array will be positioned, it surely would have been obvious to modify the method disclosed therein by using a gasket (in the moat) as generally taught by Dickerson to ensure that the areas are isolated from each other.
